

The ultimate park home experience

We look at the cream of the crop with a name synonymous globally for excellence and delivering only the very best – Tom Hartley

If you're looking for an exceptional experience, it makes sense to look at a name with a proven track record for it. Tom Hartley is a name renowned in two businesses. Firstly, luxury and performance cars – a business he founded in the early 1970s. It is a business that is respected and revered globally for more than four decades. It's fair to say he has been just as successful in the park home world since the 1980s offering some really great opportunities and high specification homes to buyers. He now owns award-winning parks in Surrey, Warwickshire, Derbyshire, Leicestershire, Staffordshire and Hertfordshire while continuing to expand into other counties.

An exceptional offering
Club Cottage, in Hertfordshire, is a boutique park set in what surely must be one of the most desirable postcodes in the UK, just a 20-minute train journey from King's Cross station in London and only 17 miles away by car, yet set in a grove of Hertfordshire's unspoilt forestry. It's in the hamlet of Burnham Green, two minutes' walk away from the village green, post office, convenience store, restaurant and pub. It's a quintessential English village setting, yet near to a range of amenities, historic attractions and transport links.

With regular buses running to Welwyn Garden City, you can take advantage of three nearby golf courses, plus there's a private airfield close at hand and Stansted and Heathrow airports are within easy striking distance.

the best of the best; a high specification model with many extras and part-exchange available, if needed, priced at £299,950. That's an absolute snip when compared with property prices in the area, for what is, effectively, a state-of-the-art apartment on the edge of our capital city.

More great locations

Another park with an interesting postcode in the Hartley portfolio is Cudworth Park, in Surrey. It's a park with its own bowling green and was one of the first to receive the National Park Home Council's Quality Award when the scheme was launched in 1995. It has received that award every year since. The nearest village to the park is Newdigate, which has itself won a prestigious award – The Village of the Year.

Just five miles to the north, towards London, is Reigate – a large town with very good shopping facilities. Despite its wonderfully rural location in the heart of lovely Surrey countryside, Cudworth Park has plenty nearby and enjoys access to all main services and amenities. The current high-spec show home here is for sale at £199,950, and part-exchange is available, too.

For those looking at alternative locations Amington Park, near Tamworth, in the Midlands also has availability making this an operator well worthy of a closer look for something really special! ●
